Biography

Corina Capmare is a 2019-2020 articling student at Cassels. Corina first joined the firm as a summer student in 2018. Corina graduated from the J.D. program at Queen's University in 2019. In her final year, Corina was awarded the Queen's Law Prize in Alternative Dispute Resolution for achieving top standing in her class. While obtaining her degree, Corina was an active member of her student community as a volunteer for both Pro Bono Students Canada and the Queen's Literacy Outreach program, and as a caseworker at the Queen's Business Law Clinic. Prior to studying law, Corina graduated with an Honours Bachelor of Arts in Media, Information and Technoculture from Western University and went on to complete a Post Graduate Certificate in Public Relations from Humber College. She worked in the Public Relations industry in various capacities, including reputation and crisis management, media relations and social media community development.

In her spare time, Corina enjoys practicing yoga and meditation, reading autobiographies, travelling to new places and exploring different cultures and foods.
