Biography

Danielle Hill is an associate in the Business Law Group at Cassels. Danielle attends the Peter A. Allard School of Law at the University of British Columbia. Before joining Cassels, Danielle spent a summer doing legal work for an asset management company in Vancouver. In this role, she completed a FINTRAC audit, authored numerous reports, and conducted legal research. Prior to joining Cassels as an associate, Danielle was both a summer and articling student with the firm.

Prior to attending law school, Danielle earned her Bachelor of Business Administration with a concentration in finance from Simon Fraser University. She also worked in the finance industry as a Portfolio Operations Specialist, where she became interested in business law.

In her spare time, Danielle enjoys barre workouts, reading fiction and listening to podcasts.
