Biography

Sean Baraich is an associate in the Business Law Group at Cassels. Sean advises clients on a variety of corporate, commercial and securities law matters, including public offerings, private placements and mergers and acquisitions. He has acted for both purchasers and vendors in connection with various equity and asset transactions and for both issuers and underwriters in connection with debt and equity financings. In addition, Sean advises public and private companies with respect to general corporate and securities law issues, including continuous disclosure obligations, corporate governance, regulatory compliance and Canadian stock exchange matters. Sean advises public companies across industries, however, the focus of Sean's practice is on the mining and resource sector. Sean advises mining clients at every stage of development. Sean has completed the Osgoode Certificate in Mining Law.

Sean was both a summer and articling student at Cassels. During law school, Sean was active in his student community as a student representative with Legal Education Outreach and a member of the South Asian Law Students' Association.

Prior to rejoining Cassels, Sean practiced in the Vancouver office of a global law firm.
