Biography

Mimoza Gjelij is an associate in the Intellectual Property Group at Cassels. Mimi's practice encompasses all types of intellectual property disputes, including those involving patents. With a Master's degree in Analytical Chemistry, Mimi effectively leverages her technical expertise and attention to detail to interpret and distil complex legal issues in a variety of patent matters.

During law school at Dalhousie University, Mimi competed in and won the 2022 Harold G. Fox Intellectual Property moot. She also volunteered with Dalhousie's Student Advocacy Service as a Student Advocate and Mentor. She was also a caseworker and educator with several immigration and human rights groups through Dalhousie's Pro Bono Program.

Prior to joining Cassels, Mimi served as an associate at a boutique Intellectual Property firm.
