Biography

Pasha Mabanza is an associate in the Capital Markets Group at Cassels. He obtained his JD from Osgoode Hall Law School.

During his time at Osgoode, Pasha was an active member of the law school community taking on several volunteer positions including President of the Osgoode Black Law Students' Association and President and Co-founder of the Osgoode International Law Society. Pasha also took part in a number of clinics and internship placements including Osgoode's International and Transnational Law Intensive Program as well as an internship on the Global Sanctions team at a major Canadian bank. Throughout his time at law school Pasha received the prestigious Dean's Gold Key and the Honourable N. W. Rowell Prize.

Before attending law school, Pasha obtained a Bachelor of Commerce from the University of Ottawa's Telfer School of Management where he completed four co-op placements across various Departments in the Federal Government.

Pasha enjoys hiking and watching sports in his free time. Prior to joining Cassels as an associate, Pasha was both a summer and articling student with the firm.
